Commercial Vehicles: Service Trucks

When you hear the term "Commercial Vehicle," what do you think of? Often, people only imagine big rigs or huge box trucks. The reality is that the term can apply to so much more than that. One of the most common commercial vehicles you will see is the Service Truck. These can be trucks for A/C repair, plumbing, HVAC, or even tow trucks. What do they have in common? They are all more dangerous than you might realize.

Unlike semi-trucks, which mostly travel on highways, service trucks travel on residential streets. As they move from job to job all over your community, they are passing through your neighborhood. They often carry loads of heavy equipment, tools, and materials for their work. These loads add considerable weight to the vehicles. That weight can make a car accident with a service truck much worse. This makes them more dangerous than the average vehicle.

Service Trucks also spend a considerable amount of time on the road. They can be pressured to complete many jobs on a tight schedule. This can lead to reckless driving. Their job can also be very difficult. This, plus the length of hours worked, can cause the workers to become exhausted. This can lead to distracted driving in an already heavy and dangerous vehicle.

If you find yourself in an accident with one of these vehicles, we are here to help! At Brooks Law Group, we help victims of commercial vehicle accidents in Florida. We fight for justice and compensation for our clients. You don't pay us unless we win your case, and our first consultation is free. If you've been in an accident with a commercial vehicle, contact us for help.

Steve's Corner

The new year is all about new beginnings, and in 2025 we are committing ourselves to raising the bar even higher. Our goal for this year is to fight harder, go farther, and not take no for an answer! What does this mean? It means we will not settle for less than what our client's case is worth.

If that means we have to file a lawsuit, so be it. We want the insurance companies to know that when we say something, we mean it. We want them to know that we are always ready to take them to court and argue our case before a judge and jury. We want them, and you, to know that our number one priority is to get top dollar payouts for our clients.

If you find yourself injured and want attorneys who will go the extra mile, you know who to call! Please feel free to call us or send me an email directly (steve@brookslawgroup.com)!

Beach's Corner

When it comes to personal injury cases, there are really only three things that a jury has to answer. The very first question is liability. Who is at fault? So, they will check whether the defendants are liable. If so, they will put a percentage for the defendants.

Second, were there damages as a result of the defendant's negligence? To answer this, we look to the six elements of damages in Florida. They are past medical expenses, future medical expenses, past pain and suffering, future pain and suffering, past lost wages, and any future lost earning capacity.

Three, were those damages caused by the defendant's negligence? Just because a person has damages, they are not always caused by the defendant. It is up to the plaintiffs to prove that the defendant's negligence actually caused those damages. That's where we come in! It is our job to fight for you and get you the compensation you deserve!
